Featured Presenters

Carolyn Hardin is the project director for the National Drug Court Institute. She previously was the quality assurance/research specialist for the Davidson County Community Corrections Program. Ms. Hardin received her master's degree in public administration from the University of Akron in Ohio. She received her BA in Public Administration from Talladega College in Talladega, Alabama. Her work experience includes program coordinator, program planner, caseworker and assistant to the program manager, all with Oriana House, Inc.

Paul Cary is the director of the Toxicology and Drug Monitoring Laboratory at the University of Missouri Health Care System in Columbia. For the past 25 years, Mr. Cary has been actively involved in the management of nationally-recognized toxicology laboratory (SAMHSA certified) that performs drug testing for drug courts, hospitals, mental health facilities, coroners and medical examiners, athletic programs and public and private employers. Mr. Cary has been visiting faculty for the NADCP, the National Council of Juvenile and Family Court Judges, and the NDCI.

West Huddleston is the director of the NDCI and each year is responsible for over 75 training events and 50 technical assistance visits in the U.S. and abroad. He is a board licensed substance abuse counselor with 13 years of clinical experience working with misdemeanor and felony offenders on the county, state, and federal levels. Previously, he worked within the TN and OK correctional systems and served as director of two community corrections programs. He co-designed and implemented the first two drug courts in OK, one of which served as an early mentor court for the DOJ. He has published several articles and monographs on drug courts, in-custody substance abuse treatment, and re-entry courts.
